HONGKONG, OCTOBER 26rm, 1878.

Mr. Berilios's promised gift to the Colony of a statue of Lord BEACONSFIELD, which we briefly announced on Saturday, is as well timed and appropriate as it is munificent. For such a tribute, it would have been difficult to choose a happier moment than the present, when our great Conservative Premier is at the very summit of his successes and popularity, and when all parts of the Empire are vicing in cagerness to do him or the Prince of WALES, but having regard to the proud and prominent position now occupied by Lord BEACONSTIBLD, who not England has ever had, but is the first of Mr. graceful that his choice should have fallen MONTAGUE COBRY, LOT BEACONSFIELD'S Private Secretary, with the object of inducing the Premier to assist in the choice of the to the warmest thanks of the community, from the fact that the Colony of Hongkong culty in procuring a good site for the statue. It should occupy a conspicuous position near the principal thoroughfare. Unfortunately Queen's Road affords fow facilities, as it is nowhere too wide and the vehicular and foot traffic along it is very considerable. The best site would be just inside the railings, of the statue with the railings round would occupy only a few square feet, and, if placed close to the road, need not interfere in any way with the evolutions of the troops. We believe, therefore, the Military Authorities would raise no objection to the Beaconsfield statue being erected on so admirable a site. The only other good alternative proposal is that it should stand in front of the Theatre wing of the City Hall; but this is open to some objection as the space is needed there for the throng of chairs when the building is used by the public. The small plot of unbecupied land beneath Beaconsfield Lodge has been mentioned, but that is about to built upon, and consequently is cut of the question. If the Military Authorities will only be accommodating, the Parade Ground unquestionably affords the best and most commanding site.

DINGLISH AND CHINES DICTIONARY WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN. PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at t Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have to late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, like, application should be made to and in science generally, which the rapid advance Money Order Office for instructions. of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in entenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given. the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast aconomy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vest margins and recent spons which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications.

For practical purposes the arrangement the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted To parties resident in England and interested in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion-

To illustrate the west scope of the work, the following fasts are submitted for consideration -Chalmers' Vechbulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various appli-cations and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub-It comprises upwards of two thousand large
